

HOW SUFFRAGE GREW
INTO PUBLIC FAVORMiss Beulah Amidon Lectures on Status of Federal Amendment.

"War, Woman and Democracy" was the title of the lecture given Monday night at the Hotel Patten by Miss Beulah Amidon, suffragist and press chairman of the national woman's party. Miss Amidon was in charge of the evening, and in introducing the speaker paid tribute to the Chattanooga community in its desire to be foremost in all things pertaining to the war. However, she expressed the belief that women might do better work if dignified by the power of the franchise.

The speaker opened her address by calling attention to the fact that women have been in all the wars of history. It has been up to them, she said, to see that food was provided, clothes kept in good condition, bullets molded. The present war is developing the same patriotic spirit until now, even in this country, various lines of the work which heretofore has been common consent belong to men, has become permeated by the activities of women. She called attention to the statement of Lloyd George that but for the help of the women during the war would have ended three years ago with victory for Germany.

Taking up the question of the legal recognition of the woman power among the allied peoples, the speaker pointed out that the United States is really lagging behind England, France and Canada in granting suffrage. She dealt at length with the spirit and purpose of the participation of the United States in the war as a carrier of democratic principles. The enfranchisement of women is an absolute necessity, she affirmed, in order to be a complete democracy and represent the thing for which it stands. It is upon this basis, she said, that President Wilson and congress have had introduced the federal amendment. The foreign press had been calling attention to the fact that America without a larger voting strength is not completely democratic, and many expressed surprise that this is not so.

Much of Miss Amidon's lecture dealt with the rise to power of the woman's party and the consequent abrogation of the state's rights argument. How the judiciary committee was brought around after the democratic party had come out for suffrage through the primary; how the picketing of the White House was really in response to the president's appeal that they, the suffragists, "do something to concentrate public attention on the suffrage cause"—really only an incident," the speaker affirmed, formed an interesting feature of the address.

The crystallizing of suffrage sentiment into favorable action came spontaneously, when all political parties declared favorably. The suffrage amendment—a democratic issue—having passed the house, five voices are lacking in the senate to pass the resolution there. Senator Shields, of Tennessee, is one of the five. He has stated, said Miss Amidon, that only one thing will convince him and that is for Senator Shields to hear from his constituents at home. It is for this that Miss Amidon and her co-workers, Miss Lucy Branham, are in Tennessee. Accordingly a petition was circulated through the audience last night securing signatures of many present.

Miss Branham followed Miss Amidon in a brief address explaining the present status of the suffrage resolution.

CADMAN'S SONG CYCLE TO FEATURE SPRING FESTIVAL

Interpretative Dances Will Represent Four Seasons.
Fete at Parish House.

Plans for the spring fete, which is to be given by St. Paul's choir next Thursday evening, are now completed and St. Paul's parish house, where the fete will take place, is to take on a truly gala appearance. Committees having the decorating of the booths representing the seasons in charge, are vying with each other in making them attractive. Following the principal motif of Cadman's "Morning of the Year," spring is made the keynote in the festival. The song cycle for four solo voices that will be given is typically representative of the season's beautiful music. The cycle is arranged as a continuous performance and takes about fifty minutes to perform.

One of the pleasing features of the evening's entertainment will be interpretative dances, representing the four seasons. Miss Winifred Stanfield will dance the spring dance; Miss Hildegarde Schulze, summer; Miss Harriet Barnes, fall; and Miss Delta Mishler, winter. Other features in the evening's entertainment are planned in which the audience will have a part.

Prof. August Schmidt, choirmaster, is in charge.

The Woman's Missionary society of St. Elmo M. E. church will hold their literary meeting Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. J. W. Ailey. Mrs. M. M. Catron will be leader.

The M. B. club will meet with Mrs. Boyd Hargraves Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Laycock will be leader. The club is studying Nevins and MacDonald.

Itinerary of the Misses Branham and Amidon Announced.

Interesting Personalities.

Miss Lucy Branham, of Baltimore, will speak on the federal suffrage amendment tonight at Johnson City. Mrs. Hugh White, secretary of the national woman's party, Mrs. J. C. Metzger and Mrs. Paul Devine, Mrs. Brading, of Johnson City, and other prominent suffragists are arranging the meeting at the Elks hall for 8 o'clock.

Miss Beulah Amidon is speaking before the Woman's club, of Athens, this afternoon. She will go on to Memphis, Tenn., on Wednesday afternoon by a number of prominent suffragists, among whom will be Mrs. Isaac Reese, Mrs. Mary D. West, Mrs. James McCormack and others.

Miss Branham will stay in Tennessee until about April 26, when she will go to Rome, Ga., where she will speak at a mass meeting. From there she will go to Greenville, Ga., where, on May 3, a mass meeting will be held. Relatives of Miss Branham, residing in the Rome district, Judge Judge Joel Branham, Miss Juliet Branham and Dr. Lumsford Fritz, Va. public health service. She has other relatives in Atlanta. The father of Miss Branham was Dr. John Branham, brother of Dr. Joseph Branham, of Baltimore, who achieved distinction during the yellow fever epidemic in Georgia in 1894, where he had charge of the quarantine of the port of Brunswick. Dr. Branham gave up his life in endeavoring to stamp out the dread malady. Miss Branham is one of Dr. Branham's two children and holds a master's degree in history from Johns Hopkins, and has since studied at the University of Chicago. Her master's thesis at Johns Hopkins was on the "Political History of Georgia, at the Time of the Revolution." Among her valued possessions, Miss Branham holds a Carnegie life-saving medal for helping to save the life of Miss Dena Nelson, now the wife of Capt. Anderson White, U. S. A., the gymnasium teacher at St. Petersburg, Fla., who was teaching some of the girls to swim in Tampa bay.

PAULIST CHORISTERS
AT LYRIC APRIL 17-18

In the Interest of Rebuilding
Cities and Towns in Northern France.

Chattanooga is being favored this week with two brilliant events for the French restoration, the lectures of Mile. Celine Rott and the Paulist Choristers. The object is for rebuilding the cities and towns of northern France devastated and laid waste in the war. Mrs. Sartoris, wife of Algernon Sartoris, grandson of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, who with the Countess de Olevella and some American associates, were the originators of the French restoration idea in this country, bears the fullest credentials from the French government authorizing her to accept the generosity of the American people in behalf of the inhabitants of northern France who have suffered so grievously in the loss of their homes, their industries, their public buildings and their churches. Mrs. Sartoris visited the United States last spring for the purpose of discovering with how much sympathy the French restoration idea would be met. The response to her inquiries in all parts of the country were so encouraging that, upon her return to France she was able to inform the French government that Americans were willing to open their purses to the stricken inhabitants of their sister republic. Such men as William Howard Taft, Cardinal Gibbons, Charles E. Hughes, Dr. William Mayo, Dr. Charles H. Mayo, Henry VanDyke are serving on an honorary American committee. Immediately an honorary French committee was formed, with by its personal signatures the work has complete government approval. Mrs. Sartoris, Countess de Olevella, Charles F. Beach, Frederick Matthews, all voluntary workers, were sent on two visits through the devastated areas in order that first-hand information of conditions obtained might be collected for American use. The French restoration work is conducted under the executive direction of Miss Jean Wick, at Aeolian hall, New York, the official headquarters of the movement. Several American cities pledged themselves to adopt individual French towns. The Paulist Choristers, of Chicago, a choral organization of 100 voices under the direction of Father W. J. Furey, were among the first to volunteer their services and are now touring the country for the benefit of the French restoration fund. In short, the project is the complete working out of a plan whereby the American people will help to give back to the stricken people of France the homes that were theirs before the war. The Paulist Choristers are an organization of 100 boys trained in the choir schools of America. Father Finn organized them in Chicago in 1904 after he had studied in England and the leading authorities in England and America. While special stress has been laid upon the boy soprano of the choir, its excellence rests not on this alone. All the lads breathe and tone production and instruction in sight reading. The choristers have always been in great demand for secular concerts for various undertakings, and in the last ten years has a record of over 1,000 appearances in this country. They have toured the United States and were awarded the prize in the international competition in Paris in 1912 on their European trip, and the conductor of the choir was decorated by the French Academie des Beaux Arts. They were invited to sing for Pope Pius X. at the Vatican. The program for the two concerts in Chattanooga will include many chorals not heard here. There will be soprano

POSSIBLY CONDUCTOR
DIDN'T KNOW RULES

School Tickets Refused by Hill
City Conductor—Through Missionary Ridge Cars.

Through schedule to Missionary ridge during the morning and evening rush hours have been inaugurated by the Chattanooga Railway. Light company. Ridge cars will leave the city at 6:15 and 7:10 in the mornings and at 5:10 and 5:50 in the evenings.

Some of the children of North Chattanooga who attend Central High school complained to Principal S. Ziegler Tuesday morning that the conductor on the North Chattanooga car refused to take their school tickets. School tickets were taken non the Oak street line. Information from the railway and light company was that the sale of tickets has not been discontinued, and it was explained that no reason could be seen why tickets were refused. The presumption is that there was a new conductor on the car on which tickets were not taken.

OL' UNCLE JIM

Ol' Uncle Jim, who lives with us is sure a cranky kind o' cuss—The durnest man I ever see 'Er bustin' up a jawin' bee. He's allus settin' at the store, But when we git to talkin' war, He says, "Well, I dunno, I guess you're right; Or Kaiser Bill I ain't so fond—But—did you ever buy that bond?"

Says ol' Jedge Green: "It makes me aize To think what hogs them Germans is—An' that there feller, Kaiser Bill, He'll git his bumps, you bet he will!" But Uncle Jim, he jes' sets tight, An' 'tows: "Well, Jedge, I guess you're right; Or Kaiser Bill I ain't so fond—But—did you ever buy that bond?"

A city drummer, name o' White, Was meetin' with the boys one night; Says he: "I'll bet on Uncle Sam—That shows what kind o' guy I am; They better not git away with him!" "I reckon not," says Uncle Jim, "To them remarks I sure re-spond—But, stranger, hev you bought a bond?"

Says Farmer Jones: "Them submarines—They won't be with a hill of beans When Edison an' Ford git through With all the things they aim to do!" But Uncle Jim says, kind o' slow: "Well, I dunno—Well, I dunno—I hope they drive 'em off the pond—But, Siles—hev you bought that bond?"

It made us fellers at the store So everlastin' gol-dern sore We didn't know where we was at; An' what with this, an' what with that, We fowed that we would go to Jim An' mention what we thought o' him. We tried it, an'—I'll be doggoned—If he ain't sold us all a bond!

So now he lets us cuss our fill At Hindenburg an' Kaiser Bill; An' Uncle Jim, he makes more noise An' brags the worst of all the boys. He claims one sawed-off Texas runt Could bust the whole dern Western front, An' go to Berlin—an' beyond—We let him talk—he owns a bond!
